“ Janie was my great aunt, and great she was.. This woman knew how to out dress her peers whether it was full fur, or Betty Boop from head to toe, she never left her place without full attire and she was quick to speak her mind whether you wanted to hear it or not. Losing the last of my grandparents in the early 2000's, Janie was the only one to fill that role, and she did it well. Anyone that knew her, knew that her favorite place to be was up at her lake home in Zimmerman that her husband Harry built in the 70's and she'd live up there independently until she was in her mid 90's. She was incredibly strong and was the only person in her nursing home that didn't use a wheelchair or walker. She passed away just weeks before her 96th birthday.

About 10 years ago, Janie had given me the honor of a great position, her property caretaker, and little did I know it would turn into something much more. Frequent trips to her favorite grocery store Aldi's, trips back and forth to Minneapolis, and many days caring for the yard, I spent a lot of time with Janie and she kept me out of trouble. At that stage of my life, I was more in the "partying stage" and through my time with Janie, would end up with a suitable career, a spouse and two beautiful children. When asked who was responsible for my success, Janie would be first to say it was her, and that I was her "little entrepreneur", which is so damn true.

Janie you were the life of the party and will be missed forever, we will never forget you.
