“ Today your memory and our loss shines brightly in our hearts. I miss and love you Andrew. I think of you always but today I reflect on what was, and what could have been. I embrace this grief for it is as real as you are, the pain, the sorrow only proves your effect on my life as deep and eternal. I love you Andrew, that never goes away or lessens with any passage of time. Please wrap those who are in this journey with us in love and peace, especially your sister.

I never would have thunk it, my baby boy 19. I wish with all my heart that you were physically here to enjoy it. Each passing year it gets more difficult to celebrate it for you. What would you be into now?, would you be in love, going to school, working? So I rely on the past and celebrate with the things you loved. Star Wars, Pizza, and family. I miss you and love you so much. With the happiness of a birthday celebration is the sadness of you being gone, that never goes away. Happy, Happy birthday Andrew.

“ Andrew,

Today my heart feels the heaviest its been since we lost you. Today should have been one of the greatest days of your life, instead it's one of the saddest of mine. The day you were born changed me, I was filled with so much love and hope. I always think of the day you were born with such clarity and joy. You taught me how to be a parent Andrew. And in death you are teaching me how to live with my grief. Today I should have seen you as a man, 18 years old, with your future ahead of you. And given the challenges you presented it would have been a wonderful day, filled with laughter, cheer, and joy. Yet I am filled with only sorrow. Your death has no clarity, no reason. This year has been the hardest, no graduation to plan, no college to prepare for, no future for my son. I will wish you a Happy 18th Birthday, knowing you will celebrate in ways we do not comprehend. And please forgive me if I can not be strong on this milestone, your 18th birthday, for this day was one I worked towards since you were placed in my arms. I love you and wish I could hug you and tease you about charging you rent, moving out, being a "man" now, and taking you to vote. I wish I could see your first car, your dipolma, and your beautiful dimples. Most of all I wish I could be looking ahead at life with my adult son.

“ Andrew, Today was the '2nd annual Snowman for Andrew' day. The weather was awesome, the snow was perfect. And Dude you have one big @#& Snowman!!!! I bet its at least 7 feet tall. We laughed and played, Mikie threw me in the snow, but I know you have my back right?..., right Andrew? It makes my heart swell with pride and love when a group comes together to spend time with us and you. When anyone drives by the cemetery, they will know, that kid is missed and loved!!!! We will keep building them towards the sky, and closer to you. Love you bunches and bunchesMom

“ Hi Andy =), It's been a year now and there have been alot of changes. The one thing that will never change is how much me and your Dad miss you and your quirky sense of humor. We have told everyone else so I guess I had better tell you, your Dad and I were married on Sept. 18th of this year. It was a quiet little ceremony but we had a picture of you with us. You were the only family member there with us. The priest asked who the picture was and I told him that you are my special buddy and Mike's youngest son. He smiled and said "Cool". We Love and Miss you ALOT and think of you all of the time!

“ Andrew Bud, On 9/11/03 the whole world mourned losses. It's been a year for us and all the pain remains. This is my first entry and it was very difficult for me. We all miss you so very much. I know you are watching over all of us but today will be an especially hard for Mom. Allyssa and me. Keep an eye on Allyssa she'll need you soon. Princess is sick and may not get better. Your little sister is very sad about this. I watched the VIKINGS run over Green Bay on Sunday. and thought how fun it would be to "get in your face" after the game. {You know that right?} I knew that because I brought balloons to you and you kept popping the VIKING ones. I brought them to you and the Green Bay ones are the only ones that made it. {In fact the green one was still going the next week. I'm practicing up on my cribbage as you often suggested, but I haven't found a chess player to play with. I know you and John are safe because you have each other and you are both safe in our hearts. Remember me, I love you the most! Gram 9/11/03

One year ago today, you left this world.
One year ago today, my world turned upside down.
One year ago today, questions were asked, yet they still go unanswered.
One year ago today, your voice was silenced.
One year ago today, I began to silently cry.
One year ago today you were larger than life, today you still are.
One year ago today, today changed, it became forever, like I will

It's been an eternity since I last talked to you. I've been avoiding writing this because it feels like an end... A good bye that I didn't want to say, but must. I just started doing more with you, teaching you, learning from you, getting mad at you and vice versa. It's hard to have lost that almost as soon as I earned it. But I will not be mad, I will learn from you one last time. One last invaluable lesson. I will treasure everything I care about because I might not have it TOMARROW. I never realized exactly how close tommorrow really is. You will always be in my heart little bro. I will see you again.

“ Andrew, 17!!!! Wow! I watched you grow and every year marveled at how you would get taller, bigger, and older. I spent your birthday with people who love you, singing "Happy Birthday" at a cemetery was a first for me, however the past couple of years have been full of so many firsts and lasts. I love you so much and wish you were here to get my jokes, push my buttons, and be alive. We should have spent this birthday together Andrew. I hope you had a huge blast, I tried to do right by you here. Partly because I wanted your birthday to be special, mostly because I still don't believe this. It seems so unreal that you are gone forever from our lives. You made up so much of mine, and that void seems to get bigger instead of smaller. My heart hurts. My soul knows that you are with John and we will all meet again, and that eases the pain somewhat. I know I speak of many when I say it's not fair, it does not make sense, and we miss you terribly. Happy Happy Happy 17!!!! Here's to wishing we had be able to have more. Love, Mom

“ Andrew,

I can not believe you have been gone six months today. It seems like the shock is just starting to wear off and the pain is beginning. I miss you so much and sometimes I wish for just one more hug or to share a laugh with you. I do things to honor you, I speak of you to anyone who will listen to me, and I cry tears upon tears. I remind myself that you are without pain, fear, and darkness, sometimes it helps. But my loss is what I grieve, the loss of seeing you growing up, getting your license, graduating, getting married, and being in our lives. You are always in my thoughts, and I Love you.

“ As all new years do, you reflect back over the last. In my reflections I revisit the day you died. Then my memories take me all through your life. Andrew I was fortunate to have Pat, Jesse, and Candance stop over yesterday. We spent our visit catching up and sharing our memories. It was such a perfect way to close out the year. None of us are alone in our grief, or our memories. Good or bad you fill our thoughts. And Andrew I knew you were here with us. You are listening with your heart and when we are able to open them fully again we will all feel you too. Be patient with us as we travel this road, for our mind, heart, and souls are heading to you.

Love to you and to a better 2003 filled with gains, few losses, and hope.

“ As all new years do, you reflect back over the last. In my reflections I revisit the day you died. Then my memories take me all through your life. Andrew I was fortunate to have Pat, Jesse, and Candance stop over yesterday. We spent our visit catching up and sharing our memories. It was such a perfect way to close out the year. None of us are alone in our grief, or our memories. Good or bad you fill our thoughts. And Andrew I knew you were here with us. You are listening with your heart and when we are able to open them fully again we will all feel you too. Be patient with us as we travel this road, for our mind, heart, and souls are heading to you.

Love to you and to a better 2003 filled with gains, few losses, and hope.

“ Andrew,

Missing you doesn't even cover it. The holidays seem so lost and that makes sense as I feel so lost without you here. Santa filled your stocking and hung it with care. Everyone has expressed thoughts of you and it warms my heart to hear people remember. The Christmas I messed up and got you a left-handed guitar. Your first Christmas, full of hope and wonder. When you grew up to be Santa's helper. My best present of all, when you wrapped your Gene Simmons guitar pic for me. While you aren't the plan ahead type, your thoughtfulness on Christmas was beautiful. Last year you wrote the following on a piece of paper:

"I Love(heart) U Allyssa Merry Christmas "

I laminated that for her this year to carry with her always. Allyssa and I think of you all the time and we surely feel your absence on this holiday. I Love You, you are my boy forever and ever. And if you were here today I would give you a huge hug,amid tears and smiles, and say "Merry Christmas."

“ Andrew,
Halloween is upon us and I find myself remembering the wonderful Halloweens of past. Your first Halloween party in our basement of Lauderdale. Monster pizzas and games. Your pumpkins through out the years, lopsided grins to bats and skull carvings. All your costumes; clown, Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtle, Ghostbuster, and countless vampires. It was never about candy for you, the dressing up, the flurry of activity, decorating, seeing others in costume, Scooby Doo to Halloween 1,2,3, etc. scary movies, and using your creative dark imagination. You thrived at Halloween as if it was only your special day.

Please accept my sincere condolences on your loss. I work in the office at school. No matter what kind of day Andy was having he was always so pleasant to us. I'll miss his smile and sense of humor.
