“ Damb Brother, we graduated together and joined army together . I remember grandma and aunt Pat buying you new clothes for graduation ceremony and you ripping your arm out of socket jumping off cliffs and then unable to join army. The irony. Then I remember you telling me Aunt Pat bought your first vacuum as a Kirby salesman and you took off. I will miss you. ”

“ This sucks. Please remember not to be too busy for a phone call, don't procrastinate plans with a loved one, and remember to tell people you love them. This was not someone I thought would leave this world so early and unexpectedly. I'm going to miss you Uncle Brian. You had so much left to give to this world. And you made everything positive somehow, and fun! Love you and will see you and everyone else some day when the timing is right. ”

“ Damb, talk about memories . Let's see, held your arm together while we rode into Duluth after your put it thru the window in sauna after Hayes threw cold water on us. Watched Kevin rip tip of his nose off, crash a motorcycle and light himself on fire all in the same weekend.

Then we were only seniors on the baseball team and went cliff jumping where you tore your arm out of socket. I jumped from a spot park ranger said I should have died jumping to flip you over in water. Thought you died that day. We joined the Army together only for that shoulder to keep you out.

Sold your first Kirby to Aunt Pat and your grandma, starting a brilliant sales career.

I bought Blake his first monster truck that he could drive .

Moved you out while you were accused by a dingbat back into your mom's at Barbs command , all while home on leave. And now this.

Guess I won't see you in Vegas this year. I will miss you Brian , thought I would go first.

I'm gonna see if I can find a bottle of TJ Swan Easy nights and do a toast to you. Peace
