“ Hi there, to whom reads this. I'm Nick Parenteau, one of many of nans loving grandchildren. I'm writing to share my time I spent knowing her for the short while that I did, meaning that I fully got to meet her when I was 18 and we spent many of Christmas together but not long after we started to drift apart again, that is up until today when I had seen the post. Grandma “ nan” as I know her was the most loving and caring person I have ever met. She was very supportive and listened very carefully when spoken to and without any doubt she'd definitely tell you how it is without holding back and I had the utmost respect for her honesty. I know these are memories to be shared about Nan but I find it so sad and well very interesting to know that for about 5 years give or take her and I lived in the same city without ever knowing it before I knew about her along with other family members that I had never met. Nan I sure do miss you and love you and I wish I could have hugged you once more. I know that Jesus will take care of you up in heaven now and you shall never be forgotten because of the joy and love you had brought this world. I love you Nan. Rest peacefully.
