“ Charlotte was a steadfast, loving caregiver. I will always cherish many many memories of her love and devotion. I was one of many grandchildren and even though she made each of us feel like her favorite, she knew how to spread her love to all of us. She was consistently a provider, listener, teacher, wife, mother, grandmother, musician, cook, gardener, backscratcher, caregiver...she taught me how to crochet, play card games, love homegrown and homemade foods. I can say unashamed that I would sit on her lap up into my preteen years. She never shamed you even when she disagreed and you could tell when she would say "Ohh?" and it made you think about what you'd said without shame. She taught herself how to play the organ at a young age and there are many memories of her playing the organ and the accordian. This always brought everyone to gather around and appreciate the joyful music and each other. In her later years with dementia stealing her awareness and connections, this was sad and hard to see her slip away. Great appreciation and respect to those steadfastly becoming and enduring as her caregiver...thank you. I will remember her as she was and her beautiful loving smile. I love you grandma.
