In Loving Memory of Crystal Ann Slaughter

Crystal Ann Slaughter was a kind, compassionate soul who always went above and beyond to help those in need. She deeply loved her family, friends, and community, spreading joy wherever she went.

Crystal found happiness in singing, dancing, cooking, and embracing life to the fullest. A devoted fan of Bernie Mac, she often echoed his famous words, "I ain't scared of you." Her light shone brightly, a beacon of resilience and hope, and she never gave up, always choosing laughter and love to connect with those around her. Whether through her words or the singing messages she left behind, she made sure everyone knew how much she cared.

As we say goodbye, we wish her well on her next journey. In the words of Maya Angelou, "When people show you who they are, believe them." Crystal showed us who she was—a radiant spirit of love, protection, admiration, and laughter. When you find yourself laughing and dancing, know that she is right there with you, in your heart and memories.

When her presence is missed, simply close your eyes, remember her smile and laughter, and find comfort knowing she is safe in the hands of our Creator. May we cherish the memories we shared with her, allowing them to ease the pain of losing such a beautiful soul.

With love always,

Your other half, Isaac Russell; sons, Rashan and Ze-Quan; siblings, nieces, nephews, cousins, uncles, and aunties. We love you, Crystal. Have a peaceful journey until we meet again.
