“ I will always remember Frank for his generosity and genuineness. Back in the early 70's I had the good fortune to meet Frank through a mutual musician friend of his. I was living on the road and in the midst of breaking away from a traveling show band as a lead singer and was in the process of moving to the Twin Cities and looking for a new venue to promote my singing career.

Although having only met Frank a couple of times previously upon hearing of my situation and barely knowing me Frank stepped in and without asking got me pointed in the right direction found me a gig and I ended up renting a place to live from his lead singer at that time Eddie Rosenthal.

From that time forward over the next years I filled in or sat in with Frank and his group. But as it sometimes does life happened and as circumstances dictated we all ended up going different directions over time but occasionally we still would run into one another and Frank always acted as if he had just seen you yesterday. He always treated myself and everyone I knew with great respect and much humbleness.

He was one of the most professionally well rounded and capable musician / performers I ever met or had the privilege of playing or performing with. Frank was a warm wonderful human being and would literally have given you the shirt off his back if he thought you needed it.

I was very sad to hear of Franks passing and wasn't made aware of it until well after the services had taken place. Now Frank will be singing and playing with the angels. Rest in peace my friend.
