“ *I was fortunate enough to be invited to Key West to the condo that Carol and Jerry rented in the Winter. I have many fond memories of going on Key West tours with Jerry. We went to the Hemingway House, of course, after we both read The Old Man and the Sea prior to the trip. We went to the cemetery and laughed at the sayings on the stones like "see I told you I was sick" and "at least I know where he is tonight". The Audubon House, The Butterfly Museum where a couple of blue butterflies made a home on Jerry's socks. The museum made us return them before we left. The museum of all the gold and stuff recovered from shipwrecks. We both liked the investigation of things in Key West, not to mention a bar or two, Blue Heaven, Bo's Fish stand and the famous story of our trip to either Hogfish or Hog's Breath cafe for their fish sandwiches. Jerry was a true gentleman and a very kind man. I will miss you.*
