“ I am very sorry to hear of your loss. I was only able to meet and spend a couple of happy hours with Gus, but I know he was a great guy and fun to be around. Cherish your memories of him. God Bless your family Amanda.

“ Gus always seemed too important and busy for me to bother. I knew him as a professional and to stay out of the way. I assumed that he didn't know who I was, until I overheard him say to another comic, "That Stevie girl is pretty cool." Maybe he said it because he knew I was right behind him. I'd like to think he didn't know, but I'd also like to think he was saying it to make me feel special. And it worked. If Gus Lynch said I was cool, it was probably true. After all, Gus wasn't known to tell any lies. His honesty would upset people, but ultimately those people admit they're better people for it.

Another time, Gus told me I looked like I was dressed like a super hero. The rest of the night, I posed as "Glitter Girl" whenever Gus would see me.

Our limited interaction made a huge impact on me. And if Gus was here to do anything, it was to have these interactions with the hundreds of people he met. I am so, so lucky to have known someone of such amazing talent and influence.

You will be greatly missed but also greatly revered.

Much love,
Stevie

Hey Stevie, I just read what you wrote about Gus and it made my day. I was missing him randomly tonight so I googled his name hoping to find something I missed, or to revisit an old memory. And it led me Here, and I'm glad that it did. Gus was my brother and I miss him every day.

“ Thank you to everyone that surrounded Gus throughout his life to make him the dude we all are so devastated to lose, and my sincerest condolences... Gus was my friend, colleague in comedy, and a champion of my work, and probably would be my bodyguard too if I needed it. I miss him so much. Hugs and love to all of you.

“ I will be forever appreciative of Gus performing in The Grand National. He played the parts better than I wrote them. You have my heartfelt sympathy in his passing.
