“ Rudy contracted as a member of our firmware development team at Medtronic for several months over the past year. He joined my team this past summer, and the first time we met, he shared warmly about how he was passionate about engineering, and how he had been a marathon runner, triathlete, and swimmer. His tenacity and endurance came through clearly, having successfully overcome many challenges in his life. He also detailed how important his faith in Christ and his family were to him. It is not often that an engineer will volunteer this sort of personal information freely in a first meeting: it struck me how faithful and committed he was to these things that truly matter, and clearly his all-too-short life was all the more meaningful for that. On behalf of the entire Medtronic team, we extend our condolences to Rudy's family, and have made a donation towards Compassion International's Haiti Disaster Relief to honor his memory. You are in our thoughts during this difficult time.
