Jeanne's life calling was in guiding and encouraging others to reach their full potential, from her early beginnings as a career counselor with the Minneapolis public schools, with the amazing women of CHART to her last posting at the U of MN - St. Paul Campus, she used her incredible empathy and positivity to let others see their possibilities. Throughout, she volunteered in many organizations, churches, and charities, a whirling dervish of action and giving. Her fault, if any, was an inability to say no when someone needed help. This created a like-minded circle of dear friends who will miss her warmth and laughter. A memorial gathering will be held when safe to do so. Memorials to The Nature Conservancy or Twin Cities Public Television.
