“ It's your Birthday today John. We are keeping your wishes & sprinkling your ashes in the flower bed with "Tank", "Richy" and "Daisy",...whom you missed & Loved so much. Seems like a lifetime ago,...& yet just yesterday since you were here with us. As I write this to you, tears stream down my face. The hurt never seems to go away for me,...for mom,...for any of us,...as the days go by. It's been a tough week as we've come closer to your Birthday. For "you" we try to pick ourselves up & go on through each day, but you are never more than a thought away in our minds. Keep sending us those little signs John. It helps knowing you still do exist,...& sometime soon we will all be together once again. Never could we ever forget the Love you brought into our lives. Love you and miss you always and forever. “ Last year on this night I was laying on your shoulder holding your hand all night as you lay peacefully on life support. I remember talking to you & telling you how very much I Loved you. I remember your smell, the feel of your warm skin and not wanting the morning to come. For that would be the day we would have to let you go. That empty spot in my heart will forever be filled with memories. Memories of your voice, your laugh & the tears we have shared. Words can never say how very much you are Loved & how very much you are missed. Time will never change that. 4/10/11 I Love you John, Patty

“ Marilyn, Jan, Patty, Sharon and Charlotte with your families, I am thinking of you this evening, remembering how lonely we were especially the first Christmas without Tarryn. We were talking the other day about little things Randy's dad did at Christmas time and he's been gone for 5 years. It will never go away, but I promise it will get better. There will be that empty place when you are together this blessed season. I hope you find many smiles and pleasant memories to cherish and remember you are not alone.

“ John today has been 5 months since you left us & started your new life in Heaven. Not a day,...nor a minute goes by that we don't miss you. I know you've been with Jason & I as we've packed up the things that meant so much to you from your room. Lot's of tears & so many memories. The hardest part was when Jason had your favorite music playing & opened up your closet door. So much came rushing back to me. So many Jackets & clothes I remember you wearing before you got sick. It felt as if someone knocked the wind out of me. I love and miss you more than words could ever say. You already know that though,...don't you. The only thing that get's me through each day, is knowing that you're Happy, Healthy,...& in a way I don't yet understand,.....you still exist. I Love you John.

“ To John & all his Family & Friends, I know this transitional time & stages of grief that everyone has to go through/get through is very emotional, painstaking & surreal. I've had many a situation, in life, bearing the similar emotions on a different scale. I just want to say DON'T GIVE UP OR GIVE INTO YOUR SADNESS; John wouldn't have quit & he'd want us all to "keep on, keepin' on" too. Remember that even though his love is not physically tangible anymore, it does not make it any less. Don't stop believing; he'd love to let you all know what a wonderful "job" you're doing in his absence--& HE DOES--all the while you laugh, you smile & he gives y'all those "little nudges" onward. I love you all; just as he would have wanted... Kimberly Block P.S. If y'all didn't mind too terribly, I'd like to stop over someday to check on you; as I am in the Cities for a couple weeks or so.

“ John, Tyler has been in the hospital now for almost a week due to his medications not working properly. I spoke to him today and he really misses you and wants you to be here with him he broke down so strongly today because he doesn't have his "Buddy" to call and help him through his hospital stay. I know John that you will touch him from heaven and he will feel that you are with him during this tough time. Tyler misses you so much and loves you with all of his heart.

“ I'm reposting this for any of us that knew John, but didn't know of his passing. John you were such a wonderful person while you walked the earth &/or shared your beautiful interior to those who had the honor of knowing you. I love you now, as you know I always have. I miss you & will ALWAYS REMEMBER THE TIMES we spent hanging out together & just "being us"; along with the deep conversations we shared & how you would always end our time with, "Kim, I will always love you--you will never know..." I had an idea, but you were right, sweetheart; I never knew. May God let you rest in all the comforts that you fought so hard for in this life...but were comfortable even without because of your undying love for all that you had & all that you gave. I can't begin to imagine how your family is making it without you. My extreme condolences to all of them. I know that love you always shone upon us all and the spirit you encompassed each of us with shall hopefully be the light that brings the strength and memory of you to last for us until we get to see you again. You were always there for me...no matter the time that passed or the distance. It's as if we'd never parted. I hope & pray that is enough to comfort you, me and all of us left that have been left behind because our Lord said to you, "John...now is your time; come with me as to end your suffering, My Child." I can't imagine a more beautiful sight than you, in the Heavenly Skies as you so proudly left all of us better off for having known you. I so love you, & will never forget you, Kimberly S. Block I ONLY wish I could've met your family so that I could bring them so kind of Solace in your passing. I love you, my Dear, Great Friend and Love.

We Love you so very much.I believe you're right. I probably never will be able to let John go. I just want some of this horrible hurt I feel to go away. Never have I felt pain like this in my life,...So I can only imagine the pain my Mom feels each and every day. That kills me even more. I am trying so hard to believe that "Time" will heal,....*

“ Patty, You will never be able to let John go. You will always carry him with you and the smallest things will trigger memories--there he will be, right with you. Everything is so fresh and painful now, as we expect it to be. Truly, time is the healer of the intense grief. It is different for everyone in every situation, at least that's how we have found it to be. Our prayers are with all of you that the strength comes soon to give you a smile when you think of John. At least a smile once in a while--let it chase a few tears away. His love for you was like yours for him. He would want you to have at the very least brief moments of happiness. Always remember we are here for you. Carole

“ John I really wish that you were here I miss talking to you at night especially when things don't go right with Tyler. I picked up the phone today to call you but something stopped me it may have been you. I know in my heart you are not sick anymore but I only ask of you how do I give strength to Tyler, myself and your family that you are doing fine? Please show me in your way. I will always love you and your family and I will do anything for them.

“ John they say there is a reason for everything. I sure wish someone out there could tell me what that reason is, Cause the pain I feel every moment of every day is unbearable. Could I have traded places with you I would have done it in an instant. Life as I once knew it will never be the same. Not without you here. Please Dear Lord,....give me ONE full day without tears. Give my Mom the strength and peace she and all of us need to get through this. Are you whole again John??? Are you happy??? Are You healthy??? Do you know how very much we love and miss you??? I had told you so many times over the years that I love you,.....I am so very thankful for that. You are with me each and every day, & will be forever. Your sister,

“ I wish there were words to take the pain away. There were so many times we felt the impossibility of meeting the next day, let alone the next minute. Grasping the fact that there was a reason we weren't meant to know yet, was hard. We'd talk to each other and to ourselves with the reminder that for you is, John knew you loved him just by your sacrifices and now he would want to know that, though you are grieving, you hope for some little spark of happiness in each day. This little spark will have some flare ups where you could find yourself laughing about something he did or said. It's way too early to believe it could be true, but the flare ups will be more often and they will give you the strength to make it to the next day and week. I hope it helps to know that you are all very close to my thoughts all the time and my heart hurts with you. I love you all. Your niece and cousin,

“ John, I know you needed to go, but I feel so very very lost without you. You told me so many times that you were not afraid to die. Thank you for sharing that with me. It gives me a piece of comfort that I would not have had otherwise. Do you know how many people loved you??? Oh John,...there are so many! Please don't worry about Mom. Jason & I will never leave her. We will all take care of her,...just as you would have wanted. I know I can't touch you, but I can still smell you each night as I sleep in your bed. You are the strongest person I have ever know. You were never quite sure what to believe in. Well what a huge surprize it must have been when the Dear Lord opened his arms and wrapped you up in them. I Love you with every inch of my being and will forever miss you Little Brother.

“ John was my very best freind growing up. We were like brothers, Both of us had older sisters and no brothers so we loved each other like brothers. I know he is in a better place and we will all see each other again. Ever since he left us my mind has been constantly thinking about all the great times we had growing up together from riding our big wheels up and down the sidewalk, starting Kindergarden together, all the way into become adults. I will be thinking about you forever

“ I'm so sorry to hear about John passing away. He was always a sweet boy. He never said a mean thing. It seems always suffering with his health. But thinking back to Jefferson Street, our family had some really good times with him. Some of the best times of my life were on the front sidewalk just hanging out or in the back in the field playing kickball. You are in my thoughts.
