Judy was the consummate artist. Drawing from the time she could hold a pencil and working in nearly every medium; drawing, painting and sculpting. She ended her life as an artist working in stone. As she slowed down, she preferred the slow, deliberate refining of the stone. Fiercely loyal to family and friends, she enjoyed time spent with them even on her final day.

There will be a private viewing for family only. No public services.

“ To the family of Judy, I am sorry for your loss. We are Richfield neighbors and loved visiting with Judy to chat about art and dogs and yard work and family stuff. I first met Judy in the 90s or early 2000s while walking and we were lucky enough to meet her dog, Barney. And then we got a golden retriever and then a rough collie. She wanted us to name the collie Mufasa instead of Kramer because he was so majestic. We absolutely adore Judy and miss visiting with her.

Take care.
