I will never know a loss like this, but what I do know is that little Katelyn will never know pain, hurt, sorrow or fear. And when the time comes to meet her in Paradise, you will know those things no more.

“ You and your family are in our prayers. God will keep Katelyn safe and she will always be watching and helping you go on through your journey. When you look to the sky she will be with you and make you feel that she will always be with you and make sure everything 's alright. When you feel like your lost, something tells you she will always help you find your way because she is there to help through your pain.
