“ I had a wonderful time getting to know Ken. He was a great role model on aging and how to live out ones last years as active as the body will allow one to be. I hope when I am in my 90's I am still doing the things he was doing, making new friends, teaching "kids" in their 50's how to fish for pike, surrounding himself with family members who obviously love him very much. I know I will think of him often in the years to come, especially when the thought pops into my head that "I'm too old be to doing that". I don't think Ken ever had such a thought.

He must have been a great dad and husband, as he has such a wonderful family. To Mark and all the rest of the Andersons, thanks for sharing your dad with me and allowing me the honor of knowing him.
