Tho' Grandma's gone and journeyed on, she's still alive and well within our hearts, and tho' her earthly shell now rests beneath the hill we yet recall her gentle touch from not so long ago. To our Lillian - farewell! As you go with God to dwell. Tho' many thought her small and frail, she was possessed of might and love, and is held dear for that same love she leaves behind with us in our best and brightest memories of yesteryear. To our Lillian - farewell! as you go with God to dwell. Tho' she no longer lives among us, she's kept near us in the cherished gifts she gave - quilted tapestries, heirloom recipes - gifts we'll treasure even more now the giver's in her grave. To our Lillian - farewell! as you go with God to dwell. Tho' Grandma's gone we gather in our grief together with the family she bore and tho' our loss is great, find some relief in the company of kin who will miss her evermore. To our Lillian - farewell! as you go with God to dwell, farewell. By her granddaughter, Robin Vukonich Washburn-McReavy Eden Prairie Chapel 952-975-0400
