“Lori, words cannot even begin to explain about how I feel. We have been friends since we were three years old and remained friends till the day you died. We shared all that teenage, girl boy troubles. I can't tell you how many times I wanted to call you the last week and a half. It just doesn't seem real yet. we had become so close in the last 15 years and that is what I will miss the most. You were the one that knew Bruce and when he died, you were my rock, as we both had lost the loves are our life. You were the one person that I could talk to about Bruce and that knew him as long as I did. We had many laughs together. The fun David, you, Bruce and I had at the lake will never be forgotten.. Miss and love you, Lori! ❤️❤️❤️ fly high girlfriend!

“ Lori,

Sandi and I became very close over the last 10 years. We endured the loss of her brother Jeff, and her father Bob in a period of three years. Jeff died after a yearslong battle with cancer and Lori was his main care giver. She was with him thru the good and the bad and the family would have had a hard time dealing with it without her. Jeff left behind some issues with his house and finances and without Lori's help things would not have turned out as well as they did. Her and her partner Gary worked very hard to bring the house back so we could eventually sell it after Jeff died. She was also very involved in caring for Bob both as long as he lived alone and in assisted living. This was made very difficult as it was during the pandemic.

Lori and Sandi developed a relationship that was stronger than normal sisters, they were best friends. They talked daily, they helped each other with life's everyday challenges. Lori's life was anything but easy, she had some very good times and some very bad times. She lost the love of her life very tragically in a long and difficult battle with brain cancer. David was her rock and when he crumbled, she was lost. She got lucky when she found Gary and they had a good 18 years together. They were good for each and seemed to balance each other out.

Over the last few years thru all of the issues the family endured I gained a lot of respect for Lori. She was smarter, kinder, more loving and beautiful than I had given her credit for being. I didn't realize how big a loss the family has suffered with Lori's passing and how much I loved her. She has left a hole in Sandi's life I can never fill.

Lori, you left us way too soon, your left a hole in our hearts that will never fill. I miss you and love you, my you rest in peace.
