“ I've known Lori since becoming college roommates with her son, Erik. We recently visited with Lori and introduced her to our infant son, Ezra. She absolutely lit up around Ezra and was so gentle and motherly with him. She got to hold him and make silly faces with Ezra before he started exploring her living room to find cool dog toys. Just with that short interaction, I could confirm what I already knew, Lori was an amazing mother and we are all better off in life having known her. I wish we could've spent more time in the future with Lori but my family is thankful for the time we had and will cherish it forever.
