“ Louie was my uncle. I remember my dad and Louie owning a record store named "Holiday Records" in St. Anthony in the early 60's. One time, Louie left a bag of cookies behind but insight of my sister Annette and myself. We made history of those cookies, Louie got mad and dad went out and replaced the cookies. Louie loved cookies and was protective of them. In 1970, Louie got me my first real stereo! And in junior high school I did some babysitting for his two daughters. My dad always told me the story about the day he took Louie in for his drivers test in the early 50's. First thing Louie did when the tester jumped into the car was to roll down the window and stick out his elbow. My dad knew it was over and Louie did not pass the road test. It is rather funny and Louie did have a great sense of humor and outgoing personality.

RIP uncle Louie!

Your nephew Mark
