Louise was born in the city of Minneapolis where stayed her whole life. She loved her city and had no desire to move, even when her children encouraged her to. She was a hard-working, dedicated employee of Northtown Mall where she was able to do what she does best; meet people and run into old friends, then call her children with random people on the phone that you may have forgotten, but she never forgot them. She never forgot a face. Family and friends were everything to her. She spoke to everyone, said hi, made small talk, she was the friendliest person anyone ever met, just like her father Harry, she was a daddy's girl. She lived for relationships and knew everyone. She was loved by and loved so many. She was a very giving soul. She would give you anything and loved to give to the homeless.

She loved chocolate and Mt Dew so much that some of her grandchildren called her Gramma Candy. Her laugh was amazing and contagious, her smile was infectious. She was just as sweet as the chocolate kisses and mt dew you would find in her purse. She loved to love and will be missed by so many.
