“ Man where to start .. My son and I Met Marcus at hub hobby about 6-8 months ago and immediately clicked . These past few months hanging out with you made me feel alive again brother! Like a teenager just randomly meeting up to hang out spur of the moment on almost a weekly basis when the weather was better. Im going to miss getting those late night rc modification pictures, and our garage work shop bash days so damn much! Its hard to believe you're gone bro , just the day before your passing you had texted me checking to see if “I was Alive” then you're gone literally the next day 😞 .

I feel awful It took me till the 13th to find out you are gone .. 13 days it was the longest gap in our communication and I missed you then bro . Just hours before I was told about your passing my phone was shutting down and forced me to erase some videos to free up space so I deleted the videos and pictures of our last time together , the day you bought your brand new xrt and let me drive it . I figured out of all our videos this one was just mild so you could break the truck in, I thought we would have so many more crazy videos this spring and summer there would be no need to keep these videos. Now i truly regret I deleted them .

I am grateful we had the time we did Marcus , but its hard knowing all the good times I was looking forward to having with you this year are gone . My son and I will never forget you , Im a better man for knowing you. I could go on all day , you truly will be missed man. Fly High brotha till we meet again.

“ My brother mark...growing up was an amazing big brother. i was adopted and Mark told me that there was a big room of babies and he chose me bc i was the only one crying. i believed that mark picked me for so long. He was always made me laugh and always protected me..he definitely threatened a few boys on my behalf. We really were two peas in a pod and people always thought we looked alike and i loved being “Mark Evans’ little sister”. I will forever cherish my memories of him and I know our mom was waiting for him with open arms, because no matter what he was always her Markie.

“ I met Marcus in the 2000s down on University Avenue ,when we used to all hang out at Porky’s drive-in. I got to know him pretty good lol, we used to call him at least some of us Tony little !! because Marcus was built and in shape and he had long hair and reminded us of Tony the guy that did the infomercials for working out or a treadmill or something like that lol ! and then Marcus and his wife Denise were kind enough to offer me a job at busy bee delivery service and I worked for them for a few years Delivering auto parts and tires around the Twin Cities and I really appreciate that. It was a pleasure to know you Mark and will see you again my brother amen.
