Gram had a long and interesting life, she was born to Norwegian Immigrants and lived in a sod house on the North Dakota Prairie as a girl. When she was a young woman she moved to San Francisco and became a professional model. A relief sculpture of her head still adorns a prominent building in Downtown SF. Her family meant everything to her. She visited and kept in touch with her cousins in Norway throughout her life. Into her late 80's she still hosted the extended family Christmas party at her home, to which her parents moved the family in 1920. Her grandchildren will always remember the lively Easter morning hunts there every year. Marg's quick wit and goofy sense of humor made her popular at any gathering. She delivered Meals on Wheels until age 90. Her generosity and eagerness to help those in need will always be remembered.
