“ When I think of my memories of Marion, I smile. Many years ago, I would often arrive early at their home to get together with her son Daryl. Knocking on the back door, she would always welcome me with a warm smile and an invitation to sit at the kitchen table where we always found lots to talk about it. To my surprise, one day she presented me with an embroidered jean shirt which I'm sure she spent hours making. To this day, that is the most treasured shirt I've ever owned. What a gift! Over the years, it finally wore out, but I would still wear it until it turned into a rag. Later on, to my surprise, she gave me a new one which she had also embroidered which I proudly wore. I decided not to wear this one out. I'm now 72 years old and that 2nd embroidered shirt is still hanging in my closet in clear view. And, I still look at it from time to time. I will always smile when I think of her, she was a special person in my life, very special.
