“ Pappi.
in truth, you have taught me that no matter what anyone tries to make you think you life should turn out, you must start by loving yourself and in time love others and never take life for granted. I used to think that life was just this game and what happens happens but now because of you and the sacrifices you made for me, I don't think that anymore. you taught me that my life and my time on this earth is temporary and short, and that love is a powerful weapon and when used at its fullest, can sometimes change the way a person (me) might look at the world and her life. And you are the reason that I am still here. Thanks and Ill see you on the other side

Love
Amy
