“ Hey Grandma: I truly believe there is no love like the love from a grandparent... I'm am certain it comes from years of learning & practicing for what is important in life. I feel I am learning this now. I remember the cards and the several times we talked to each other on the phone. I'm proud to know what our family was and currently is about. I am forever humbled to have been in your presence and I thank you for being a strong feminine influence in my life. God Bless Grandma Mary and I'll miss you. Happy Birthday!!

“ Dear Grandma Mary, I love and miss you so much. I know you were ready to go, but I am just not ready to let go. I have so much more to talk to you about, so much more to learn from you. I am so sorry for all of the times I could have come to see you, and didn't. I wish I could take it all back and come see you everyday. I am sure you forgive me for it, because that is the kind person you are, but I am sorry. One day I hope to be the strong, independent, smart woman that you were. And the honest person that you were. Some things we may have not liked what you said, but you were always honest, and it was one of the many things I enjoyed about you. It is so hard to get through all of this, but I know you are happy now. One day we will meet again. Over the years I am learning a lot from my mom, who gets her big heart from you. She is just like you in every way. And one day, I hope to be as good a person as you guys are. I love you Grandma Mary. Love, Samantha

“ My mother was a beautiful, strong, loving and independent woman. She raised ten children on her own, paid for our home and saved money to live through her retirement. She filled our Christmas trees with an entire room full of presents, she made each birthday special for each child. She was there for me through divorce, caring for a sick baby boy, cancer treatments and encouraged me to get my nursing degree helping me care for my eldest children while I studied and attended school. She had her 'oops' moments as she aged and didn't filter out everything she said. Some things she said just cracked me up, other things, you could push through and find she still had the compassion she had when she was younger. As she laid on her stretcher before going to surgery, she told me that I was "much too busy for sitting around waiting--get back to work and call the hospital--they will give you updates", and then she asked Jim how his mom was doing and said "she will be just fine". I am thankful for those last few minutes and only wished there were more. I hope I take away from her half of her strength and wisdom. I will miss her more than anything--because I loved her, she was my rock and she was always there. Your loving daughter, Nancy

“ Hey Grandma Mary, Sorry I never got the chance to come hang out with you, so we could get to know each other better, as we had previously spoke about. But, at least while as an adult I've been able to call you a few times and keep you up to date on the family here in Virginia. I still and will always appreciate our last conversation, when you broke down the family heritage and where our side of the family stands. I appreciate it a lot because I never knew what exactly my heritage was, completely. So, without question you helped me close one of those "open chapters" in my book! Well, I just wanted to tell you I love you and I wish I had the opportunity to talk to you more and to know you better. But, from what I do know and what I have heard from your own voice, you were an outstanding woman with a wealth of knowledge. And to all other family members, I know you will not know me (maybe when I was baby) but feel free to contact me and maybe we can start to get to know each other as "family." Love you all and hope to meet and talk with you all soon! Love ya, G-Ma Mary! Rest in Peace!
