“ The Little Engine That Could
It was 1933, I was 5 years old. We lived on a farm and railroad tracks ran nearby. The train made two runs, one early morning, one in the afternoon. I would be there in the afternoon to wave at the crew as the train went by. On Christmas morning, it was still dark. I heard visitors. It was the crew from the train. They had stopped the train and brought my family fruit, nuts and candy, as well as a small China doll for me. I have never forgotten that Christmas or those men who were generous.
Written by Muriel A. LaPage

My mom also told the story of the following Easter. The train came by, they threw a package off the train to her. Inside was a new dress, shoes and socks. Just for her!
