“ I have been thinking back a lot these past few weeks about Neil and Barb. Bill K jogged my memories of McNutt Quad back at Indiana University in 1969, especially my role as roommate and 'health aide' during his recuperation from his skateboard accident - I drew the line at the bathroom door (!!)...although it wasn't all out of the kindness of my heart, I remember Maurice would slip me a few bucks whenever he visited during those times.

Neil and I met in high school, lived together off and on during college, both lived in Minneapolis, and kept in touch after that for years and years. I didn't/dont have a better friend. Rest is peace, Room.

“ I first met Neil on our freshman dorm at IU. I liked him right away-- how couldn't you?! I remember when he broke both his wrists trying out a skateboard that year--and how gracefully he managed the recovery (with wonderful help from his dear friend and roommate)! I had the chance to meet his father when he came down to check in on his son, and I thought, no wonder Neil is such a neat guy. Many years later--and much to my surprise--I meet up with him in Minneapolis, and Neil helps me with a difficult corporate legal matter--not just with his keen legal mind but also with his supportiveness. My thoughts and condolences to his family and friends at this sad and tender time.
