“ I met my co-worker Pat Reese on my very first day with US West over 16 years ago. Unfortunately I didn't become close co-workers and good friends outside of work with him until about 6 years ago. Pat always told me he hated people... Told me he wasn't a people person. After a few short months of working side by side with Pat I found out that all that talk was nothing more than smoke and mirrors. Some sort of social defense mechanism I think...

What I also found out is that for a guy who claimed he didn't like people, he had a unique ability to draw people to him. Pat was not only a father figure to many of us, but hiding behind his misanthropic façade, he was one of the most genuinely caring and generous people I have ever met.

It turned out Pat actually cared for a great many people and he cared for them deeply. He was always willing to go above and beyond to help out his co-workers and friends. I think I can speak for everyone that knew Pat when I say that he seemed to share a kindred spirit with all of us.

I can honestly say that I genuinely loved the man. He helped me build my garage from the ground up. He bequeathed many of his own tools and possessions to me as only a father figure and good friend would. I will miss him dearly and will continue to celebrate his life and the special friendship we had for the rest of mine.

Rest in peace my good friend! I love you brother! You are gone too soon and will be missed dearly.
