“ In June of 1976 I arrived in Minneapolis as a newly minted FBI Special Agent. As my first supervisor, Ray was as fine an example of an FBI Agent as I was to observe during my career. In an organization that is full of incredible leadership that is no small compliment.

Sometime later I was transferred to the Duluth Resident Agency. By then Ray and I had become friends. He invited me to join him at his cabin in the north woods where he was to introduce me to the world of duck hunting. I remember sitting in the boat with Ray and his dog as the sky slowly turned from a deep, dark blue to a rosy pink, bringing the excitement of many flocks of ducks winging in fast toward our decoys. I remember that experience, shared with Ray, like it was yesterday.

As the years went by, and I returned from my time in the New York Office, we were able to get together again for a few lunches, and to reminisce. How I wish we had done it more often.

Ray was a a true gentleman, and a man of honor. They don't come any better than Ray Gammon. It was such an honor to have known him.

Steve Russell
