“ Roger was my good friend for over forty years and we worked together many of those years. We duck hunted together for around twenty years and shared watching the sun come up, if the weather was good, while drinking coffee and watching for ducks. Roger was always in a good mood and willing to discuss all kinds of topics. He certainly had a gift for gab and had lots of stories to tell. It was sad when he had to quit hunting but we occasionally met for lunch after that. He certainly loved Lorraine and enjoyed all of their travel together. Roger will be missed by many.
