“ I met Fergie in the spring of 1995 at the establishment where I was employed. He, Colleen and I quickly became friends. His infectious smile and the Scottish accent were what drew me in (reminded me of my grandmother) He was a genuine person with a good soul. And although we kind of drifted apart, we remained friends. RIP Fergie, tell Jimi, Janis, Richie, and the Ronnie to rock on.

“ So Many Years Ago I met Fergie as the new member of the Rainbow crew(Me not him😭), Instantly knew what fun this run would be. Mischievous and yet hilarious. One would have to listen hard for the inside humor, But it was always there. That crew taught me a lot about working hard and being responsible for your job. I remember a show at the Capitol Theater in New Jersey, A must stop back then for all touring bands. The Scorpions were the opening act and as they finished their set, Fergie and I sat on the stairs to the Dressing Rooms. Guessing the lads from Germany had a bad set as they passed us on the stairs and stopped and blamed Fergie for the crowd not standing and cheering to which his comment was “Who won the war anyway”. Tears of laughter as we went on to do our show. Too many to post for a legend in the field. I shall truly smile whenever I have a memory or hear his name. You will be sorely missed my good man. Cheers 🍺🍺

“ Colleen and family,

Sig and are are still in shock and will greatly miss him. Our only regret is we haven't seen you guys for a few years, as we always think we have more time, always more time to see friends. Gregory loved talking with Fergie, from the time he was only a teen. We all loved him dearly. He was such a kind hearted man and loved his wife and their pups.

I'd like to share an old Eskimo proverb at this time.

*Perhaps they are not Stars,
Rather openings in Heaven
Where our loved ones shine through
To let us know they are okay. -*

*May each time you gaze up into the darkness of the night,
You see a bright, shining star
Twinkling, as if to say, "Here I am!"
May the love of Fergie pour down upon you,
Embracing you with his love.
May each time you need him, you feel him in your heart.
His soul may have left his worn out body, yet he remains forever in your heart and memories, as he does to all who's lives he has touched.*

With our deepest, sincere sympathies,

Sig, Melanie and Gregory Siganos

“ Thank you for your wonderful friendship. Working together during the Badfinger years, we shared many wonderful memories, stories, truck cabs, hotel rooms, omelet breakfasts (not too much cheese tho) and stages in our touring years. You missed your dog while on the road as I did and your stories about him were wonderful and made me feel happy and welcome working with a great group of British mates. You will be and are missed by all. Rest in Wonderful Peace my friend and Mate! Gary V.
