“ There are some people in life that touch our hearts and our souls forever.

Sandy was my cousin, my friend, my mother.

In all my trials, she was there. In all my endeavors, she was my champion. In all my crisis, my rock. She always had a bed ready for me, a safe place to talk, a kind word to make me smile, and the most beautiful song to belt out to chase away any doubts that she loved me. She taught me to dance, to sing, and to never care how eccentric our lives were. An impish grin could always tell me that she was up to something. A laugh that was only matched by her father. A love that was unending

There are no words I can express of what this woman meant to me throughout my life. To say I will miss you barely scratches the surface of the hole I now feel.

She loved her husband, her son, her grandchildren, her family and friends. Her legacy will not be forgotten.

You fought hard and long, now rest. Our family is with you, here and in heaven. I will join you someday and see what a light you brought to the choir!

“ Mom,

Thanks for showing me what it means to live life with passion. You have always been an inspiration to me especially when I was making music for a living too.

I miss our phone calls about old movies and especially your stories from the Jazz days.

I want you to know that everything is fine, we are all going to be OK... I know that you are home now and some day we will all be together again.

In the meantime, step out on that new stage and show em what ya got!!

Love,

Stephen
