“ I was so sorry to hear of Sharon's passing. When I was young and we would come visit Warren and Pearl, Sharon would take us to Bridgeman's. Turtle sundaes are still my favorite.

I lived a few houses down from Sharon when we were both 12. We became best friends, and when I had to move to California for my father's job, we both cried and cried about being separated. We wrote letters to each other for several months (which I still have) and vowed never to forget each other. I have thought of her often. I tried to find her several years ago, but couldn't and didn't know her married name. I am very sad that I could only find her now. I loved her dearly.
