Steve was a true adventurer who embraced life with an unwavering spirit. He was a military veteran who proudly served his country in the United States Army, 82nd Airborne Division. His zest for life was evident in his many interests and passions.

From a young age, Steve was a collector, always in pursuit of hidden treasures from memorabilia and antiques to Redwing Stoneware. Steve had a passion for the open road, covering hundreds of thousands of miles crisscrossing the country to visit his boys. He was an avid car enthusiast, an active participant in Porsche gatherings both near and far.

Animals held a special place in Steve's heart, he shared his life with four Dobermans and three Dachshunds. His compassion extended beyond his pets; he was known to stop traffic to assist ducks crossing the road, carry a turtle to safety, or rescue a stranded snake.

Steve leaves behind a legacy of enduring friendships, some built over decades and others more recent but no less meaningful. He made a point never to let a day pass without reaching out to a friend through a phone call or a personal visit.
