A child of immigrant Italian parents whose father died when she was nine, Theresa and her four siblings established through hardship a strong bond that expressed the importance of family. Through their example this ideal has been carried down two generations. Theresa's strong work ethic began early serving at drug store lunch counters and an assembly line in Texas building B-24 bombers during WWII. A homemaker until her children were all in school, she then began many years as a waitress at Northstar Inn's famed Rosewood Room. She volunteered as a member of the Minneapolis Police Ladies Auxiliary, the Italian Heritage Society and the Stella del Nord. Theresa gained pleasure as a skillful seamstress and an accomplished gardener. She delighted in hosting holiday and birthday dinners. A devout Roman Catholic and a dedicated member of St. Bridget's parish.
