“ Thomas was my oldest brother, he and I shared a love for fast cars . We often sat around talking about the cars we used to have and some of our relatives we had that are now also gone. Being the youngest of the Johnson boys and he being the oldest we didn't spend as much time together as I would have liked. Later in our lives we did finally spend some time together talking about old times and our other siblings. We shared moments together that I will cherish .
