“ I'm so sorry I was unable to visit Tim before he died. We had some fun times back in the day. Maybe too much fun. Tim was a smart guy. He watched a lot of CNN and was up to date on politics. He knew more about cars that I ever did. Tim once told me that I was the "spark" in our group of friends. He saw that in me, so I know he was intelligent and perceptive about people and what made them unique. I would characterize him as a humanitarian. He had a way and charm about him where he could easily make a connection or conversation with just about anyone.

Ebby was a great kid, I knew him for about an 8 year period. I met him in the 1st grade of school at St. Johns and up thru the 8th grade at St. Joes. Yes Paul, Tim was a genius on the topic of cars, even back when we were kids. I remember when we were at his home, on Ebnet circle, he talked on and on about his fathers modified pick-up truck.... He was also naturally inclined to build things, like the time he built a fort in his back yard. I was amazed as I watched this 12 year old kid erect a beautiful structure from various pieces of wood he found floating around. I also remember Tim's great sense of humor, he often made me laugh at the craziest moments, especially during school day mass... It's really ironic, I haven't thought about Tim in years and I suddenly I have a dream about him last night. We were fishing on Shady Oak Lake and he caught this monster 10 pound bass, and all I remember is his beautiful smile on his face. Then I awoke and went to the computer and googled on his name and I read that he died. Well, I just wanted to say thanks, Tim, for some great childhood memories. My thoughts and prayers are with you and your family. The world would be a much better place if there were more people like Tim in it...
