“ I am so sorry for your loss. I wish there was something more I could say to help. That is why, during a time like this, I try to look to the Bible for comfort. Scriptures like Psalms 46:1 and 55:22 tell us to throw our burdens on God because He wants to be there for us during our times of distress. There, it also says that God will give us strength and brace us up when we need it the most. I have found the best way to benefit from God's offer of comfort is by getting to know His personal name which is found at Psalms 83:18. I hope these scriptures can help bring you a measure of comfort. Your family has my sincerest condolences.

“ You had such a contagious personality. Whenever I was around you, I couldn't help but smile and wonder what ridiculous thing you were going to do next. It was a pleasure knowing you. You will be missed.
